Ashley Schafer is an Associate Professor of Architecture at Ohio State University and founding editor of the critically acclaimed architectural journal, PRAXIS. The journal is known for engendering architectural discourse uniquely rooted in practice and has generated a forum that bridges the gap between theory and practice. She will be discussing the latest subject she and her colleagues are exploring in the next issue.